Spring is a time of renewal and hope for many. April 22 is Earth Day.

We acknowledge that we are currently on the homelands of Indigenous Peoples. 27 tribes have a connection to the land in what is currently known as Nebraska.

We respect and are grateful for the stewardship and conservation of the land that these tribes have managed since time immemorial, and which continues today

With that in mind, we recognize that it is our responsibility as an organization to honor and emulate this stewardship, not just on Earth Day, but all days.

Let us strive to leave a better world for those who will remain when we are gone.
